Welcome to a new way of living

I Live United

I began giving to United Way about 50 years ago through my employer because I thought it was an efficient way to help those in need. I still believe that, and I'm glad to see that United Way is also changing. Today it's focusing more on solving problems in my community over the long term, rather than just simple fixes.

United Way believes there are three building blocks for a good life – a quality education that leads to a steady job; an income that allows people to support themselves and their families; and access to the resources needed to stay healthy.

“I give because collectively,
we can make a difference”

But United Way can't do it alone. We share a stake in each other's success, no matter what our position or our means.

I've been retired over a decade, and I continue to give to United Way because I believe we change community conditions collectively.

My name is Bill and this is how I Live United.

How We Live United

Whether or not you realize it, we all share a stake in each other's success, no matter what our position or our means. To Live United is to commit to making our communities better places to live, by making sure that people around us have the help they need to create better futures. We connect people to critical building blocks that allow them to do just that, like a quality education that leads to a steady job or an income that allows them to pay off debt or buy a home. This is how we Live United.

GIVE.

Continuing your United Way contribution is the easiest and most powerful way to improve your community and the lives around you. Please complete and return your pledge form today.

ADVOCATE.

We need people who are passionate about education, income and other issues to write a letter to the editor or make some noise in other ways. Sign up for Action Alerts and connect to advocacy opportunities.

VOLUNTEER.

Our Volunteer Centers connect people to projects that fit their schedules and suit their passions, providing the best opportunities to help make a difference. Find a list of local volunteer activities at LiveUnited.org.
